Explanatory notes

For point 4:

On January 9 DL made a presentation to Ledningsrådet on progress and plans at E-Press. A result was that Lars Holberg was given the task of developing a list of 10 ways to disseminate the information that is collected at E-Press. The thinking was to increase awareness amongst journalists, schools, industry, etc. The idea is to increase the number of people who actively choose to come to LiU E-Press to find information (rather than waiting for them to Google in).

I have a feeling that Lars H might appreciate some suggestions… The task for E-Press steering group members is to think about possibilities so that we can discuss and create a list to be passed onwards.

For point 5:

At a Bibl Styrelse meeting that DL attended a question was raised as to whether Journals that E-Press hosts should be allowed to have advertising. DL was given the task of evaluating this (and so far has not had the time). LiU probably has rules about this type of thing, but for now, I would like to just have a broad discussion of the concept, whether it is desirable, what the limits should be, examples of journals that have advertising etc.
